European project for support to small and medium-sized enterprises in placing products and services on foreign markets

Most Croatian small and medium enterprises are active on the Croatian market. Considering the current circumstances, the answer for overcoming the aggravating business conditions might be a more intense focus on foreign markets. With the help of the Enterprise Europe Network (EEN) and 600 partner institutions involved in the Network, TERA TEHNOPOLIS can provide support in connecting entrepreneurs with foreign partners. There is a great demand in the EU for Croatian products and services and contract negotiations are already underway. Entrepreneurs can use the EEN services free of charge, so TERA invites the region's entrepreneurs to contact them.

Cooperation with foreign partners is possible in both directions: placing products/services on foreign markets and identifying products/services for import. The EEN Network is the most important support structure in Europe and is based on the "one-stop-shop" concept. Besides TERA, members of the EEN Croatia are other regional partners in Varaždin, Split, Rijeka, and Zagreb, while the Croatian Chamber of Economy acts as the Network coordinator.

Osijek's department of the Five Minutes company is one of the few software testing service providers in Croatia

Five Minutes, a company specialised in developing social networks and mobile services, owns a department specialised in software products testing, based in Osijek. Software services being tested in Osijek are used by tens of thousands of people from Great Britain, through Germany, to Italy and Greece in around fifteen European countries. "The biggest project we are currently working on is 'Vodafone Music' that includes a wide spectre of musical services, and which is, for Vodafone mobile operators, being developed by Real Networks, one of the world's leading companies in the field of Internet videos and music", says Davor Banović, head of the department. "We also test our own products, the greatest of which is ShoutEm, a platform for creating easy social networks with all the advanced functions offered by servers like Twitter of Forsquare." ShoutEM is the latest product from the workshop of Five Minutes and the proof of its popularity is the fact that there are more than 10.000 networks based on ShoutEm. Also, in 2010 a reputable world magazine declared this project as one of the 5 new Web 2.0 projects worth being looked into. The quality assurance department of the Five Minutes company is responsible for spotting errors on these global servers long before they become a burden to the users, since the errors found by users themselves are still the most expensive. However, their most important task is to assess which features of a software have a potential to be improved in order to give the users the best service quality. Since software quality assurance is one the less developed IT activities in Croatia, there is a lot of room for growth. The company expects new business with global and domestic producers and software purchasers, especially in the field of social networks, geolocation servers, and video and music streaming servers. This year we organised the first Croatian conference on software testing. The conference was held in Osijek, with the support of TERA TEHNOPOLIS Ltd. and the Enterprise Europe Network. Around forty participants, software testers, programmers, and software enthusiasts participated in the conference. The success is attested by the participants themselves, who expressed the desire to continue gathering at this conference in Osijek, which encouraged the organisers and gave us the hope for ViaQA 2011 conference, says Davor Banović on behalf of the Five Minutes company.

AGRICULTURAL EQUIPMENT CLUSTER Ltd.

The Agricultural Equipment Cluster started its operational activities in April 2007, under the operational direction of the CEA National Centre for Clusters, with the support of Osijek-Baranja County, City of Osijek, European Commission, and the Ministry of Economy, Labour and Entrepreneurship.

The initial initiative was oriented on recognising the interests of businesses and products with a potential for development and production of agricultural equipment and its parts, for both domestic and foreign market. Within the cluster formation initiative, a contact with 81 companies and 2 scientific institutions was established, out of which 42 enterprises in total signed a letter of intent for possible inclusion in the cluster, with most of the enterprises being based in Osijek-Baranja County. The cluster members during this period employ 3.843 workers in total. Besides manufacturing companies, they also contacted scientific research institutions and development institutions, such as the Technology Development Centre Osijek, Faculty of Economics in Osijek, and Faculty of Agriculture in Osijek - Department for Mechanization in Agriculture, as well as companies whose core business consists of designing, development, high technology services in general, and high-value added products, which is recognised as one of the key aims of this cluster, says Željko Erkapić MSc, the cluster manager. The production of agricultural machinery, as a very significant aspect within the agricultural production, cannot be observed as an independent variable. The fact is that agricultural production in Croatia is going through difficulties and is confronted with great challenges in conditions that must be fulfilled in contemporary integration processes that will eventually, with a variety of other adjustments, result in Croatia becoming a member of the EU.

As an unstoppable process, globalisation causes possibly the greatest amount of fear and disturbances in the agricultural production segment. It is important to mention that agricultural production nowadays and family farms that should carry the new development in organisational, structural, and technological, financial, and every other sense, generally suffer from significant disorders, illogicality, and systematic indeterminacy, and thus reduced market competitiveness, compared to the average picture of the same production in the EU. Several enterprises that have for many years been profiled as producers of professional and recreational equipment - agricultural machinery, interchangeable machinery, and agricultural production equipment, from ploughs, seed sowing machines, harrows, planting machinery, rotary cultivators, mineral fertilizer spreaders, sprayers, cultivators to manufacturers of skidders and combine harvesters are active in the Croatian Agricultural Equipment Cluster. There are also several manufacturers that foster a programme orientation of machinery and equipment production from the, so called, weekend-programme. Furthermore, a great number of companies has substantial capacities in toolmaking, metal machining, as well as iron casting and production of different kinds of castings for various programmes, from shipbuilding and automotive industry to municipal programme and consumer goods. Some enterprises are involved in service business and finished product manufacturing for the established world brands (Honda, YAMA, MTD).
